ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS: The activities described in this publication regard the "Alternanza scuola-lavoro" project carried out by CNR-IRSA with students of Rocci high School aimed to awaken students to the problem of contamination found in many Italian rivers and in particular in the River Aniene. The students had a good understanding of the problem and the possibility to sample and also personally conduct several chemical and microbiological analyses on the water samples at the IRSA-CNR Institute in Rome. The authors thank Dr. Donatella Luciani for her helpful support in all the activities.
